

INTEREST SURVEY RESULTS

You're a natural teacher

You're a natural teacher, and people tend to follow you. You speak well and you're good with people, especially face-to-face. People are very important to you, and you show it; you're the one all your friends go to for advice. You usually trust your gut feelings, and those feelings often tell you to do things that help other people. And, when you do something, you do it with all your heart. There are many careers you'd probably be very good at, like teaching, counseling, sales and supervising other people. But stay away from jobs that don't involve working with other people. Accounting, for example, might not be the best job for you.

You're an enthusiastic adventurer

You are the most enthusiastic of all types of people and your energy is contagious. Your type is very rare; only a small percentage of the population. New experiences excite you, but if things stay the same too much, you tend to get bored. You are charming and at ease with your friends. There are plenty of careers that you'd likely be very successful at. You would make an excellent advertising professional, politician, salesperson or screenplay writer. But think twice about a job with lots of rules and regulations; you'd probably find it to be a real drag and get tired of it fast.

You're a natural leader

You like to be in charge and like to do things efficiently. You may have enjoyed directing a group in the past. You are concerned with doing things efficiently and because of this may be particularly interested in science and technology. You work hard to get to the top of whatever group you are in and this work helps you get what you want. In terms of careers, there are many choices that would suit you well. An executive-level businessperson, leader of a school or director of a government agency would all be good choices, because they would allow you to use your leadership skills. Because of your interest in science, you might think about becoming a doctor.

You are a natural inventor

You are a natural inventor and enjoy creating new things. People often admire your curiosity and your need to know things. Your upbeat attitude makes people feel good and they want to hang out with you. You don't like some traditions and would rather not do things in a certain way just because "that's how it's always been done." You are an excellent problem solver and because of this have a strong interest in science and technology. In terms of careers, there are many choices that would suit you. You would make an outstanding teacher because you would come up with new ways to make learning exciting for the students. You would also make an excellent engineer or inventor. Think twice about jobs that involve too many rigid rules or routines; you might get bored fast!

You're a natural host

You are naturally very sociable and good at bringing people together. You have a lot to give to others; including your friends, classmates, co-workers, family and community. You care a lot about your relationships and groups, and the people you care most about recognize this trait in you. For a career, you should try and pick something that takes advantage of your outgoing personality and desire to serve and work with others. Good choices for you include occupations like a salesperson, teacher, coach, religious leader or administrator. In general, you will likely find the most satisfaction from jobs that give you the opportunity to work a lot with other people.

You're a natural performer

You are a warm and optimistic person and people like to be around you because you are generous and fun to be around. Being around other people is important to you, and normally you would prefer not to be alone. You'll likely prefer a more active job and should not take on jobs where you have to spend a lot of time by yourself. Performing might appeal to you. Public relations may also be a good choice because this field would give you the opportunity to work with a wide range of people. Jobs where you'd spend a lot of time alone, such as science or engineering, may be less satisfying for you if you value spending time with people. You may be drawn more toward a career in business, particularly positions that provide a lot of people-to-people contact such as selling.

You're a dependable group leader

You are responsible and good at helping groups run well. You are a dependable person. You stick by your friends and they trust you for it. You take rules seriously, mostly because rules were made for a reason and you don't want to get in trouble. You show up to classes and activities on time and have basic expectations that other people should show up on time, too. You are a practical person and willing to work hard to make sure the job gets done right. You are likely to rise to a level of responsibility in your career in whatever path you choose, and you have a good chance to succeed in various roles if you work hard and play smart. There are many career paths that would suit you well; although you may be more drawn to careers with lots of structure, as you'll likely want to be in charge. An executive-level businessperson, leader of a school or director of a government agency would all be good choices.

You're a natural advocate or promoter

You are resourceful, and others think you are interesting to be around, partly because you are fun, and partly because when you're around; things happen. You are good at understanding people; whether they are classmates, friends or family. Your skill of understanding other people's ideas is useful and can be valuable in helping you succeed in any career where bringing people to an agreement is necessary. There are many career paths that would be good for you. You would make an excellent entrepreneur or businessperson. You would also do well as a politician or lawyer.

You're a natural counselor

You're a natural counselor and people like you are rare. One of the special things about you is how hard you work to help other people reach their full potential. Overall, you're a private and sensitive person, and you don't generally want the spotlight as the group leader. But behind the scenes, you work hard to help people you care about. In terms of careers, you should think about a job that involves interacting with people on a one-to-one basis. A family doctor would be a good choice, as would a writer that provides helpful advice. You may be inclined to be a spiritual leader, although you should remember that this may sometimes require you to be more social than you want.

You're a natural healer

You are a natural healer and you like to help people get along with each other. You have a strong sense of how things should be in the world. Sometimes you may feel different from other people and that can make it hard to be comfortable, because you care so much about things. But don't let that bother you. Keep being yourself; you have a lot to offer. Good career choices include being a doctor or other roles in health care, researcher, college professor, or architect.

You're a strategic planner

You are more self-confident than many other people and you find it easy to make decisions. You are very good at planning and frequently have a second plan if something in your first idea changes. You will likely do very well at work because you work very hard and stay focused on what you believe in. In terms of careers, there are many choices that would suit you well. You would make an excellent scientific researcher or executive-level businessperson. Engineering would also be an excellent choice.

You're a careful thinker

You are able to pay very close attention to work and this is part of what makes you successful. You really like to understand things and that may be why you like science and computers. Although you may not always want to be with other people, you are very good at working within the system with others when you need to. In terms of careers, there are many jobs that you would be very good at. You would be an excellent mathematician or philosopher. Many disciplines of science would also be a good choice. You would also be a very good teacher, particularly for more advanced or college students.

You're a natural guardian

You like to serve others and care about people on a one-to-one basis. You are dependable and demand the most from yourself. Usually, when you're asked to do something, you work hard to finish the job and get the job done right. Generally, you take rules seriously and prefer that others do the same. You can be trusted to perform admirably in whatever tasks and jobs you take on. Appropriate career paths may include being a doctor or nurse. You would also make an excellent teacher, librarian, or other profession that involves being in charge of how things run.

You are a natural artistic creator

It is possible that speaking isn't your favorite way to express yourself – but you know better than most people that there are many ways to express yourself. You probably enjoy activities that let you express yourself in interesting ways such as music, writing, art, dance or cooking. You do not always like to plan ahead; and you enjoy surprises and living in the moment. You have a unique way of viewing the world that allows you to be aware of things that may be missed by a lot of other people. Creative, artistic career choices may be best for you, including such jobs as a composer, dancer or painter.

You are tried and true

You are a dependable person who tries hard to do what you say you're going to do. People trust you because you have earned it through your responsible behavior. Loyalty is important to you; and you are willing to put in a lot of effort to make sure that you don't let down the people who are most important to you; whether that's your school, team, job, religious institution or family. You are thoughtful and pay attention to details, which is one reason why you are good at handling responsibility. Others appreciate your honesty and fairness. You are a patient person; and this is good because it prevents you from making quick, unwise decisions. For a career, consider jobs that allow you to take advantage of your strengths; dependability, honesty and attention-to-detail; such as a banker, investor or financial planner. You could also be a good supervisor or manager for any organization that needs a responsible person in charge to keep things running smoothly.

You're a natural artisan

You like the feeling of freedom and enjoy exciting activities. Sometimes, you get restless when you feel held back from participating in activities that you enjoy the most. Schoolwork isn't always your biggest interest, but when it comes to areas you are interested in, you can show amazing talents and ability to learn. In particular, you may be drawn toward careers that involve working with technology, tools and gadgets. Appropriate career choices may include occupations that allow you to use technology and tools such as a pilot, construction worker, mechanic or military professional.